
We recommend that teachers and people organizing cultural activities for children and young people at the Royal Castle in Warsaw (under the aegis of the museum lessons for primary and secondary schoolchildren) read this information. It is also useful for people interested in courses organized for teachers and also for pupils who are searching for information about the type of classes offered.

You can find details about painting and drawing classes and groups can find information about history, literature and philosophy workshops which are all based on art themes.

We would advise families to pay particular attention to the Saturday Meetings at the Castle - these classes are of a popularizing nature and are conducted within the exhibition itself. These classes are addressed both to the very young as well as young people and adults.
